

Flowers for Google

Thursday, 21 January 2010

"Beijing (AsiaNews/Agencies) – Like at a vigil, net users in China laid flowers and lit candles to show their support for Google, which threatened yesterday to pull out of the mainland if censorship and espionage did not stop against dissidents who use the net to communicate with the outside world. [...]"

In a show of support we also would like to deliver flowers to Google when we have 50 comments.

Please login to enter your comment below.